Christian Endeavor Musical.

There was a charming, musical and dramatic program given at Garland chapel last Monday evening; one that would have filled a city chapel to overflowing, and which was enthusiastically received by the Bethel people fortunate enough to be present.

One rarely hears better music, better rendered by amateurs, and the recitations were charming. From the first number on the program, a bewitching trio by Mrs. Sturdivant, Miss Chamberlain, and Miss Rand, to the crowning composition given as a "finale" which was Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas," rendered by Mrs. Sturdivant and Miss Chamberlain, it was all delightful. Miss Rand's brilliant Moszkowski waltz; the beautiful duet, "Ave Maria" by Giorza, given by Miss Chamberlain and Dr. Sturdivant with such purity of tone and sympathetic quality of voice; Miss Mueller's rippling cadenzas in Liszt's masterly nocturne; Miss Gehring's humorous description of "How Girls Fish," Dr. Sturdivant's solos, and Miss Brightman's wonderfully clever impersonations all gave thorough delight, and were keenly appreciated. Bethel may well congratulate itself on having such resources of talent upon which it may draw for its artistic occasions, and when a similar program is again arranged, those present at this recital will not be conspicuous by their absence. A loud and persistent "encore" is sounded by the enthusiasts; When shall it meet a response?

Washington's Birthday.

The young patriots of Bethel celebrated the day on which we honor our great American, in a manner possible indicative of the spirit of the new century in which they are to play so prominent a part. Tar-barrels and tin horns as an expression of patriotic feeling were supplanted by interests upon a different plan. Perhaps Lowell's famous line may state the position, "Time makes ancient good uncouth."

That the members of the Tennis Club chose this day upon which to begin their series of social occasions wherein they will seek to develop in themselves and in others the qualities that make the good citizen and therefore the good patriot—was in itself a happy thought.

To learn to reverence is the very foundation of character, and is the hall-mark of superiority, in the developed man or woman. Our republic will stand, if, "to look up and not down" is taught its youth as a vital truth. Therefore when Odeon Hall was transformed into a temporary "Hall of Fame" last Friday night, the young, of all ages, felt the thrill that can only come when we ourselves become superior through the power of recognizing the superiority of others.

Feeling the responsibility of an untried situation, the Club members modestly limited the invitations to their indulgent families and to the young married couples just before them in years. But when the evening proved that it had a right to exist, through its undoubted success, they bemoaned themselves that their courage had not been greater, and that many friends who would have been quick in appreciation, were not present as honored guests. "Hæc fabula docet"—that there will be other occasions.

Each club member filled the position of host or hostess and received the special young guests at the hall door, presented them to the patroness, and seated them in the cozily arranged little amphitheatre, which had the flag as an apex of attraction.

The Rev. Frank Barton, the Rev. Arthur Varley, and Mr. Fred Merrill were seated on the left. The Misses Gehring, Mueller, Twaddle and Richardson, were up on the right.

Mrs. Gehring, the patroness, opened the evening by a few words calling attention to the spirit of the day, and asked that the audience would begin the programme by rising and singing, with gratitude that they were Americans, "My country, 'tis of Thee"—which was sung with fine effect.

A short address of welcome was then given in behalf of the Club, and the program was as follows: A paper upon "Characteristics of Wordsworth" was admirably given by Frederic B. Merrill, and illustrated in a charming way by Miss Richardson's rendition of "She was a Phantom of Delight," and also by Miss Twaddle's reading of Wordsworth's "Daffodils." Miss Gehring gave a most interesting sketch of the turbulent life of Richard Wagner, illustrated by piano duets from themes in "Tannhauser" and "Lohengrin" by Mrs. Gehring and Miss Mueller. This closed the literary and musical part of the program.

The Rev. Frank Barton was then presented to the audience, and in his own inimitable way, proceeded to gather up his impressions of the evening and to present them in the most charming manner. He then led the thoughts of the deeply interested audience upon the level where the character of the "Father of our Country" stands unchallenged, and is forevermore to be "part of our life's unalterable good, of all our holier aspiration."

A greeting was delivered from Mr. Hanscom who, greatly to the regret of the Club, was too ill to be present, and then the Rev. Arthur Varley was introduced as one whose patriotism was called forth in double measure by his love and loyalty for two great countries. Mr. Varley's beautiful tribute to the Queen will not be forgotten, and in leaving her womanly character as a standard for the young women to whom he spoke, he might have felt that he had expressed in his own words the ideal Wordsworth gave in his immortal lines.

"A perfect woman, nobly planned, To warn, to comfort, to command." Turning from the Old World to the New he gave the dominant note in George Washington's character with great clearness and vigor, and closed with such an eloquent expression of reverence for what is represented by the "Flag of our Country" that it seemed but the illustration of his sentiment when, to the stately prelude "The Star Spangled Banner," the curtain slowly lifted revealing Miss Stearns, royally beautiful in white robes, draped with the colors and bearing a silken flag. The electrified audience rose, and, as the last notes of the grand old song died away, it was little wonder that this patriotic climax of the evening found expression in the College, "Nine Raahs for the Flag."

The intermission which followed was filled with congratulations and adieus, and then came the long-promised "Deportment Drill," wherein a long line of clever, up-to-date boys listened in the most courteous manner to a little series of suggestions which will help them to fill places of prominence and honor by and by.

The Tennis Club then assumed the care of its guests, and such as wished to do so were piloted in proper dignity through the figures of a quadrille. After an hour of merry "lending a hand" in this manner the Club members and friends allowed themselves the pleasure of keeping time to "Two Steps" and favorite waltzes, till they suddenly observed that the pianist was softly playing, in waltz time, the suggestive theme of "Home, sweet home" and, this literary, musical, patriotic evening was happily ended,—thus marking the first "Open Evening" of the Tennis Club, and the first celebration in Bethel, in the Twentieth Century, of George Washington's Birthday.

Obituary.

G. Fred Atherton died Sunday morning, Feb. 10, 1901, at his father's home in Newry, after an illness of several months. He leaves a wife and daughter, also his parents, to mourn his death.

Mr. Atherton's early life was spent in Newry, where he obtained a common school education. Later he attended school at Gould's Academy in Bethel, where he decided to obtain a college education, and by his own efforts and perseverance, worked his way through the University of Maine. He was highly esteemed by his college mates; received honorable mention for the best Junior essay; was secretary of his class in the Senior year and delivered the "Address to the Undergraduates." He graduated in the class of '92 with the degree of B. M. E.

In the summer of that year he accepted the position of instructor in shopwork at the State Reform School, which position he creditably filled for five years. While connected with the school he married Miss Helen Beale of Phillips, and soon after removed to Susquehanna, Pa., where he entered the employ of the Erie R. R., by which company he was retained until last summer, when failing health compelled him to return to his native town and out-door life to recuperate.

He was a member of the Presbyterian church in Susquehanna, Pa., and was a young man of strong religious convictions, great faith and confidence in God and in His divine plans. Few there are whose character was so unimpeachable, whose life was so clean and upright, and whose nature was so kind, patient and unselfish.

THE PEACEMAKER

By W. W. JACOBS.

[Copyright, 1900, by W. W. Jacobs.]

The battle was fixed for a Saturday evening, the two trainers, after much wordy warfare, having selected a site which Mr. Larkins insisted had been made purposely by nature with a view to affairs of the kind. Lofty cliffs hid it from view, and the ground itself consisted of turf so soft and spongy that Larkins predicted that Tarbut would bounce up from it like an India rubber ball. The performers expressed themselves as satisfied, though their regardlessness in the matter of thanks for the trouble which had been taken over the arrangements formed food for conversation for the trainers all the way home.

The boats got in early on Friday afternoon with their fish. The catch was small and soon disposed of, and then the attentive trainers, reserving them from admirers who were feeling their arms and putting leading questions as to their wind and state of mind, sent their men indoors with concise instructions as to how they were to spend the last evening. Larkins officiously sent his man off for a short, sharp walk after his tea, and later, on going to the quay, found that Bullock had given his man the same instructions.

"Don't you go worrying of 'em, mind," said Larkins sternly to the group, "and let 'em have an easy time of it tomorrow in the boats; both of 'em," he added generously.

"Spoke like a Briton, Mr. Larkins," said an old fisherman.

"What I want is fair play and no favor," said Mr. Larkins. "It's to be a genuine sporting affair; no bad blow, or anything of that kind. After the little affair all that go to see it are welcome to one drink at my expense."

"It's time my man was back," said Bullock, looking up the road which led over the cliffs. "I told him to go just as far as the ground and back."

"Old Peter Morgan's gone down to the place, too, I think," piped a small lad in huge boots. "I saw 'im following of Tarbut."

The landlord of the Three Fishers started uneasily. "It's on my mind," he said, in a melancholy voice, "that that blessed old teetotaler! He'll have the thing stopped. He'll tell the police or something."

"No, he won't," said the old fisherman who had spoken before. "Me and Peter was boys together, and he's never done anything of that sort in his life. Before old Peter got religious there was nothing he liked better than to see a fight or take part in one, either, and it's my opinion he'd like to see this one, only he don't like to say so."

"Well, he won't," said Larkins grimly. "It may be as you say, but we're not going to take any risks."

Conversation became general and, in view of the nearness of the event, animated, but still the two gladiators failed to put in an appearance.

"He's overdoing it, that's what he is," said Mr. Larkins, referring to the appeared to be half embracing his companions. "Why, they can hardly walk," said Bullock. "They've been too far."

"Yes, that's what it is," said Larkins in a hollow voice.

"Seems to me," said the small boy slowly, "that they've 'ad a bit of a scurf already."

The crowd, with bated breath, stepped out to meet them, Larkins and Bullock leading. It was evident that the two heroes were clinging to Mr. Morgan more for support than from any motives of affection, and it was no less evident that the lad's remark as to a bit of a scurf was capable of wide interpretation. In a few minutes both parties were face to face and the two trainers gazing at their charges speechless with indignation.

"Which is Gubbs?" demanded Larkins at last in an unnatural voice.

The figure of Mr. Morgan's right arm managed to open an eye and to twist its swollen lips into something intended for a smile.

"What 'ave you been doing?" vociferated the incensed landlord.

"Fighting," said Gubbs, speaking with some difficulty. "It's all over now. It was a draw, and we're going to halve the money between us."

"Ob, are you?" said Larkins bitterly. "Well, you won't have a dashed bad penny of it. What do you mean by it, Eb?"

"I'll tell you all about it," said Morgan, who was looking radiantly happy. "I saw Tarbut going up the road and I followed him and talked to him, and by and by he comes Gubbs, and I talked to him. Then I found out what, of course, I knew before, that all you men were trying to induce these pure souls to knock each other about for money."

Mr. Larkins, choking helplessly, looked sternly at Mr. Morgan and pointing an insinuating finger at Tarbut's visage.

"I urged 'em not to make such a brutal show of themselves for money," continued Mr. Morgan, "but they said as 'ow they would. Gubbs said it would be the easiest 35 shillings he'd ever earned, and Tarbut said it was him as was going to earn it. After a little talk of this kind, Gubbs here 'it Tarbut smack in the eye."

Tarbut gave a faint groan in confirmation.

"Then they both started to peel," continued Mr. Morgan.

"Why didn't you stop 'em?" inquired the ex-coach guard. "It was your duty as a Christian to stop 'em."

"I thought it was better for 'em to fight like that than to make a brutal exhibition of themselves," said Mr. Morgan with dignity. "It was a revolting spectacle, shocking, and I'm glad and thankful there was nobody there but me to see 'em make such brute beasts of themselves."

A threatening murmur broke from the crowd.

"There in that sweet, secluded spot," said Mr. Morgan, shaking his head, "these two men, stripped to the waist, knocked one another about for 15 rounds. First blood fell to Tarbut, he got in with his left on Gubbs' nose, then Gubbs up with a fearful blow and knocked him flat. It was as clean a blow as I ever see. I took Tarbut on my knee. Poor fellow, he was doing wrong, but still he was suffering, and Peter Morgan's always got a knee for the sufferer. Second round he was more cautious and, watching his chance, clinched and fell with Gubbs under. It was a disgusting spectacle."

Mr. Larkins bent savagely over to Mr. Bullock and whispered in his ear.

"When time was called," said Mr. Morgan.

"Who called it?" inquired a voice, with the accent of one making a point. "I did," said Mr. Morgan; "there was nobody else. Both of 'em walked round each other a bit, sparring and looking for openings. I think the third round was the longest of all. Both of 'em kept getting in a lot of little knocks and then dodging away again. Then Tarbut caught Gubbs one in the breast—hang in the wind—and then followed up on his jaw and knocked him down again. It was a disgusting spectacle."

"Must ha' been," said a dejected voice.

"After that there were 12 more rounds," continued the narrator. "Sometimes Tarbut had the best of it and sometimes Gubbs. Both men were very determined and fought very fair. It was good, solid, hard biting, and they were bruised all over before they'd finished. Once Gubbs gave Tarbut a blow over the heart, and I thought he wouldn't get up to time."

"I wouldn't if you hadn't blown water into my face out of that puddle," said Tarbut.

"It was a most disgusting spectacle," said Mr. Peter Morgan hurriedly.

"Seems to me," began Larkins ferociously.

"Two fine, strong men, stripped to the waist, hard as nails, knocking each other about for money," said Mr. Morgan. "They're never going to fight any more. I made 'em promise they would not. They're good friends now. Ain't you, lads?"

With an utter disregard of the feelings of the bystanders the two men shook hands.

"And, though I regard fighting with horror," concluded Mr. Morgan, beaming on them, "I think that, as it was a bargain, you should divide the purse between 'em."

"They won't get a farthing of it," said Mr. Larkins explosively. "Unless you like to give it to 'em out of your own pocket."

"Me?" said Mr. Morgan, opening his eyes.

"Why?"

"Ask yourself," said Mr. Larkins pointedly. "I should say if any man ever 'ad 35 shillings' worth of sport all to himself you have, and, what's more, you know it, Mr. Peter Morgan."

The peacemaker sighed and, turning, led his charges gently away. The crowd watched them as far as the Three Fishers and, observing that they detached themselves by force from their guide and friend, crossed the road and followed them in.

An Odd Coffin.

"The most remarkable coffin of which I ever heard," said a traveler, "was that of a very old Englishman who served in the French wars under Lord Nelson and afterward went to Canada and settled, I think, in Victoria, B. C. In his leisure moments he constructed a model of the flagship Victory. It was eight feet long and had all the masts, sails, rigging and cannon which Nelson's ship had. The old man took the greatest pride in it and in his last days used to watch it for hours at a time. He was a very small man, and when he died some of his sailor friends lifted the deck off the Victory and had the inside upholstered. Then they put the old man in and replaced the deck. At the funeral the Victory was lowered into the grave, with sails set and the flags flying. I don't suppose there was ever a more appropriate coffin than that."

He Liked "Joan of Arc."

An amusing little story is told in Olives by a worker on the east side, in New York. She had taken a party of children to the Art museum, and a few days later a boy said shyly:

"I told me mother about that picture we saw in the museum, and she said she wished she could see it too."

The teacher asked what picture he meant. "Was it 'Columbus Before Isabella' or 'Washington Crossing the Delaware'?"

The boy answered promptly: "Oh, no, ma'am! The girl in a old dress standing under a tree listenin'. The one that went to war and saved her country. I forget the name of her. Oh, yes; I remember now! It was 'Joan's Ark.'"

The Victoria Cross.

The Victoria cross measures one inch and two-fifths square. The actual weight of the metal is 434 grains, just 3½ grains less than an ounce. Its intrinsic value is a penny, and it is illegal in Great Britain for a pawnbroker to accept it as a pledge under any circumstances.

Marketable.

"Cap," said the mate of the Black Flag, "we have just grappled a Peruvian bark. Reduce her to ashes!"

"No," thundered the bold coast pirate, "reduce her to quinine!" Then the plank walking exercises proceeded without delay.—Chicago News.

CARE OF MEN'S CLOTHING.

How to Renovate It When It Shows Signs of Shabbiness.

When partly worn suits are properly mended and renovated, it greatly improves their appearance and makes them last much longer than if this work is neglected. When the back of the coat becomes shiny, sponge it well, lay a cloth over it and iron it dry. Place a piece of thin, firm goods under three corners and then break when they occur and darn the edges down to it. When the edges of the coat or vest become worn, remove the braid, if there is any, and replace it with new. The back of the vest often wears out before the rest of the garment, and when such is the case remove the old back, press it carefully and use it as a pattern to cut the new one by. You can see how to put it in by examining a new vest. The corners of the pockets should be sewed back in place as soon as they begin to tear down.

A thorough brushing and cleaning are often necessary, but many cleaning fluids contain strong drugs which are neither necessary nor advisable for this purpose, as they often fade the cloth. The following is a very simple and effective method of cleaning coat collars and removing soiled spots from woolen clothing: Prepare a strong, foamy suds by dissolving pearline in hot water, dip a clean, stiff brush in it and scrub the soiled portion with it. An old toothbrush that has been discarded for toilet purposes is good for this work. Dip it in frequently, changing the suds for a clean one whenever it gets dirty. When the spots are removed, scrub with clean water and hang it up until dry enough to iron. Press it on the wrong side or if that is not convenient cover the right side with a cloth and iron until perfectly dry.

How to Make Marshmallow Cake.

Beat together to a cream half a cup of butter and one and a half cups of sugar. Sift two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, with three cupfuls of sifted flour three times. Now add the flour and three-quarters of a cupful of water alternating. Then fold in carefully the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs. Bake in two or three layers. For the filling boil two cupfuls of sugar with one cupful of water until it ropes. Just before taking from the fire stir in half a pound of marshmallows broken in small pieces. When melted, pour this syrup gradually into the well-beaten whites of two eggs and beat continuously until thick and cold.

FARM FIELD AND GARDEN

RED CLOVER SEED.

Things Worth Knowing When Buying—Impurities and Adulterations.

Reports coming from various sections of the United States show, according to Botanist Pieters of the agricultural department, that with advancing prices a large amount of adulterated clover seed is offered and that where buyers are not sufficiently careful or well informed much is actually sold. This authority further tells that the clover crop for 1900 has not been up to the average in either quality or quantity, especially in the states that furnish the higher grades. European dealers are offering seed in America, and although much of this is doubtless American seed that was exported during times of low prices, it is possible some seed of the European variety may find its way to America. The use of European clover seed would undoubtedly prove disappointing to the American farmer, since the plant seems to be ill adapted to the climate prevailing in the clover growing sections of the United States. The variety has not been extensively tried in America owing to the high price the seed usually commands at home, but as far as trials have been made it is clearly unfit for planting in the latitude of Washington.

The quality of a sample of clover seed depends upon its cleanness, the percentage of germinable seed, the vigor of germination and the origin of the seed. The cleanness of a sample depends both upon its freedom from broken seeds, dirt and other inert matter and upon the absence of other cultivated plants and the seeds of other weeds and white and alsike clover are often present, and although they must be considered impurities they cannot be called injurious. Timothy may sometimes be present in such quantity as to be objectionable, not from the nature of the plant, but because the seed can be purchased at a much less cost than clover seed, and a farmer does not want to pay for clover when he gets timothy.

More serious is the presence of a considerable quantity of weed seeds, especially if among the lot are the seeds of some of the more pestiferous weeds.

In some localities low grades of clover seed are demanded because the clover is to be used as green manure, and it is thought that the weeds will furnish green material for plowing under and can thus do no harm. This is true to a certain extent, but the weeds fall far short of the clover as a green manure, and the value of the seed will be reduced in proportion to the abundance of weeds. It is poor economy to pay for weed seeds and to allow them to occupy the ground at a saving of 25 to 50 cents on the acre for seed. Moreover, when a sample of clover seed is very foul, it nearly always contains large quantities of the seeds of the worst weeds, such as sorrel, buckhorn, plantain and sometimes dodder.

The seeds of dodder are fortunately not yet common in American clover seed and are most rare in well cleaned, home grown seed, but the danger of the spread of this pest should not be underrated. When it is realized that a dodder plant can attack one clover plant after another until it has destroyed the clover over an area of several square feet, it will be seen that not even one dodder seed in a pound of clover seed should be tolerated.

Cereal Rust in the United States.

According to the investigations of M. A. Carleton, it appears that at least six and possibly seven distinct rusts affect the cereals of the United States, as follows: Orange leaf rust of wheat, orange leaf rust of rye, crown rust of oats, black stem rust of wheat and barley, black stem rust of rye, black stem rust of oats and maize rust. Of these the black stem rusts of wheat and oats are by far the most destructive, that occurring on maize being of slight importance.

The leaf rusts are evenly distributed over the United States wherever their hosts are grown. The stem rusts are most prevalent between the Alleghany mountains and the ninety-fifth degree of west longitude north of the thirty-seventh degree of north latitude and in portions of Texas and California. The leaf rusts and crown rusts are proportionately more important in the Atlantic and southern coast states.

The author believes that the damage to wheat and oats from rusts probably exceeds that caused by any other fungus or insect pest and in some localities is greater than that due to all other enemies combined.

Preventing the Melon Louse.

Melon growers should consider at this time of year any steps that they propose taking for preventing the ravages of the melon louse during the coming season, says American Gardening. It is too late to do anything after the lice appear. Their habits are such that no effective spraying or other general treatment is possible.

Two methods have been suggested looking toward the prevention of loss. One consists in thoroughly cleaning up and plowing the old melon fields between the seasons if melons are to be planted on the same land next year. This serves to destroy many of the insects which pass the winter in the trash and litter of the old melon field.

Perhaps a better method is to change the crop on the old field and grow melons in a new place. If this plan of rotation is followed, it discourages the insects and gives them nothing to work on at the old location, and it takes considerable time for them to find the new crop.

FOWL AND THEIR FRUIT.

Now is the time to be on the lookout for roup.

Do not keep hens that are more than 2 years old.

The best stock is the cheapest. Never sell the best, and never buy anything but the best.

The chaff from the barn is a good thing to throw into the chicken yard for the hens to scratch over.

In yards where the soil is compact a failure to provide gravel will cause indigestion and bowel troubles.

Light, nutritious and easily digested food is what confined fowls require. Feed regularly and in rotation various kinds of food—all that they will eat up clean.

When choice poultry are raised and are fed until they are plump and fat, it will nearly always pay to kill and dress before sending to market. Pick them dry.

Grain should be only a portion of the diet of fowls. And yet few flocks receive anything but grain. As such food will not promote laying, it is not surprising that many well fed flocks do not prove profitable.

The fact should not be overlooked that with poultry, as with everything else, good care accounts for one-half at least. The best breed, the best poultry house and the best feed are necessary in raising poultry, but strict attention to details is fully as necessary.

Mr. Major, the famous cement man of New York, explains some very interesting facts about Major's Cement.

True multitudes who use this standard article know that it is many hundred per cent. better than other cements for which similar claims are made, but a great many do not know why. The simple reason is that Mr. Major uses the best materials ever discovered and other manufacturers do not use them because they are too expensive and do not allow large profits.

Mr. Major tells us that one of the elements of his cement costs $3.75 per pound and another costs $1.55 a gallon, while a large share of the so-called cements and liquid glue upon the market are nothing more than straw-strengthened glue dissolved in water or other acid, and in some cases altered slightly in color and odor by the addition of cheap and useless materials.

Major's cement retails at fifteen cents and twenty-five cents a barrel, and when a dealer tries to sell a substitute he depends upon it that his only object is to make larger profit. The profit on Major's cement is as much as any dealer ought to make on any cement.

And this is doubly true in view of the fact that each dealer gets his share of the benefit of Mr. Major's advertising, which now amounts to over $5000 a month, throughout the country. Established in 1876.

Insist on having Major's. Don't accept any other advice from druggists! If you are at all handy (and you will be likely to find that you are a good deal more so than you imagine) you can repair your rubber boots and family shoes, and any other rubber or leather articles with Major's Rubber Cement and Major's Leather Cement. ## WHAT'S IN A NAME?

(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

In the days of 'wild cat' money in the West, the Ames shovels were used as currency. They were as stable as gold; their price did not vary a cent in twenty years. The very name of Oliver Ames & Son, was a synonym for honesty. It was current all over the world.

On the same principle Benson's Porous Plaster is the universal standard external remedy. To say it is a "good" plaster does not describe it; it is the best possible plaster. For every disease in which an external remedy is available, Benson's Plaster is used almost as a matter of course.

Benson's Plaster quickly relieves and cures where other modes of treatment are either exasperatingly slow or have no good effect whatever. Coughs, colds, lumbago, kidney trouble, rheumatism, lame back, etc., are at once remedied and soon cured. Capsicum, Strengthening and Belladonna plasters have none of the curative virtues of Benson's. More than 5,000 physicians and druggists have commended Benson's Plaster as a remedy in which the public may have implicit confidence, while, in a comparative test with other plasters, Benson's has received fifty-five highest awards. Beware of substitutes and cheap imitations.

WOMAN AND HOME.

EUROPE'S TWO ROYAL SPINSTERS
VICTORIA'S GRANDDAUGHTERS.

The Debutante's Ordeal—Two of Kingsley's Women—Sensible Toilet
Articles—Woman in Two Centuries.
When Baby Is Sick.

There are only two old maid princesses in Europe. Not very long ago the empress of Germany succeeded in marrying off the last of her sisters, a lady verging upon 28, and it is annoying to Queen Victoria that the only two royal spinsters left are her namesakes and her granddaughters.

Princess Victoria of Wales is over 32, and Princess Victoria of Sleswick-Holstein will never see 30 again, and in spite of their deplorable, conspicuous and unnatural singleness they are not the most unhappy of high born ladies. They are fast friends and allies, and though they enjoy few of the same studies and pleasures they are equally zealous in their estimate of the world's and even grandmothers' opinion and equally determined to prove that the life of an unwedded princess is neither forlorn nor unprofitable.

It is an interesting fact that of all the royal household the Prince of Wales has afforded his daughter the most kindly countenance in maintaining her position. The prince is nothing if not modern and liberal in his views. He believes in a woman making her life to please herself, and he has never come to the high parental authority over the only one of his girls who preferred not to be forced into the bonds of matrimony merely for the sake of the conventionalities. Furthermore, it is whispered that the prince was on her side when for the only time in her life she fell in love.

That event took place many years ago, when a famously rich, handsome, amiable and enlightened young Indian prince visited Queen Victoria. His gorgeous jewels, his charming manners and his excellent pronunciation of the English language created a great sensation on his appearance first at a garden party given at Buckingham palace. He was then introduced to Princess Victoria, who was then far and away the best looking of the three sisters and always the cleverest.

The young East Indian found her royal highness most attractive, and when he went to pay a visit to Sandringham he shortly found that the princess was by no means indifferent to his admiration; that personally she was quite willing to make a lady her home, and privately her lover asked her hand in marriage. He pledged himself to make her his only wife, to conduct his domestic affairs on the European plan, and he was not refused point blank. He was told to go home and let the princess's family think it over. He went and died of the plague three days after reaching India.

The princess well knew that her lover had been ordered home merely to afford her family time to put other obstacles between the seas between them. It would not have been tactful to refuse so honorable a proposal from a powerful Indian ruler; so when Providence intervened and cut the thread of the young man's life the whole royal household breathed a sigh of mingled regret and relief. Very well the family knew that had he lived Princess Victoria would have insisted and the prince would have clamored and the highest diplomacy and the severest pressure would have been required to balk Cupid of his victims.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Debutante's Ordeal.

The "coming out" of a fashionable girl, meaning thereby her presentation to society, has of late years developed into a very important epoch in her career, and one only to her engagement and subsequent marriage. In old days, although rich people often gave a dance for their debutante daughters, the majority of girls simply became eligible for invitations, etc., by leaving school, making calls with their mothers and generally taking part in the social life of the family.

Gradually, however, the change from a schoolgirl into a full fledged young woman became more and more a recognized distinction, until now, as has already been said, it is a very important era indeed—the culmination of her part and her mother's of years of anticipation and preparation.

Not infrequently parents have sufficient foresight to make prudent provision for the great event, setting aside a certain sum to aid in bringing out their girls creditably. This giving of such importance to a girl's debut seems a great mistake. It is altogether to be regretted that for her to be heralded by society writers in all the papers before her advent and then watched critically by the social world, who votes her either a success or a failure, according to her ability to secure smart invitations and obtain plenty of partners. To those who can command such attention this "coming out" is undoubtedly a delightful experience. But it is to be questioned whether such a series of triumphs over less fortunate companions is good for either character or disposition, while for the poor maids who are failures, according to the world's verdict, what heartburnings and acrid unhappiness they must experience before they become philosophical enough to fit into their places gracefully and create interests for themselves. It is very hard for them to realize what, however, is often the fact, that the race is not always to the swift, and it frequently happens that the debutante who enters society with the greatest éclat finds herself in her second winter far be-

Sensible Toilet Articles.

It is not advisable to be tempted by each new advertisement. Select pure toilet articles and cling to them as you do to favorite colors or scents. They will be as satisfactory as old friends, if you treat them right. You cannot neglect them any more than you can neglect your tried friends. The list of necessary toilet appliances is not formidable. Indeed better results are obtained by a small number of things faithfully used. A few manuring implements, a good face cream, pure soap, toothbrush and powder, a harmless face powder to remove the gloss which mars some skins, an antiseptic mouth wash, shampoo fluid that will not kill out the hair, a tonic for falling tresses, a coarse comb and well made hairbrush, both kept scrupulously clean, are a sufficient supply for the good grooming of any woman. It is a mistake to buy articles so costly that they cannot be put to daily use, like combs and brushes in fancy mountings. Plain, well made articles are more satisfactory, if not so beautiful to look upon.

Then let women put away their slothfulness and take the advantages provided for them. I believe that an absolutely clean human being is more comfortable than the other kind, and of the health of such a person there can be no question. It is all well enough to point to the apparently healthy people who live despite insanitary conditions. When disease strikes them, it sweeps down everything in its path, and certainly unclean people are not wise to look upon, are they?—Betty Bracken in Boston Traveler.

Woman in Two Centuries.

The nineteenth century opened under the most favorable auspices for the advancement of the cause of liberty and the betterment of the conditions of the human family.

Great indeed has been the advance of woman in the nineteenth century by comparison with the past. She has forced the passage of laws which give her the right to exist independent in her property rights and free to follow pursuits of life and happiness formerly closed to her. Her force of character and ability have compelled legislation to allow her to enter into the competition for an honest livelihood; she was gradually allowed to practice medicine and cure humanity from the ills of the flesh.

She has been allowed by law to practice jurisprudence; she occupies nearly 1,000 pupils; she teaches over 10,000,000 children in the public schools of the country; she is on the staff of every important journal. All this she has achieved in the nineteenth century—but how little, after all, when compared with

MRS. ANNA ASTON

"I was suffering to such an extent from ovarian trouble that my physician thought an operation would be necessary. Your medicine having been recommended to me, I decided to try it. After using several bottles I found that I was cured. My system was toned up and I suffered no more with my ovaries. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest boon on earth to suffering women."—MRS. ANNA ASTON, Box 13, Troy, Mo.

Ovarian trouble is serious trouble. Every woman knows this. Frequently she has ovarian trouble when she thinks she has only a "pain in the side." All at once she finds herself unable to walk. She is a sick woman. An operation, dangerous and expensive, is the usual procedure, and, at best, she can expect merely to gather together the shattered remnants of health after a tedious struggle.

Many times this is necessary and many times it is not. It is wise for every woman to be convinced that every headache and sideache, every abdominal pain, indicates something wrong, and something which will not go away itself or be driven away by hard work. It is also right for every woman to know that for every disorder of the feminine organs Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the perfect treatment, that it is the medicine always safe to use and always certain to help.

When your health and perhaps your life is at stake, it is wise to pass by a remedy which holds the record for the greatest number of absolute cures of female ills and which is recognized by the profession as the greatest medicine for women in the world, and accept something else which you know little or nothing about?

Read the records of cure in the letters like Mrs. Aston's printed regularly in this paper, and if you are sick, do not be satisfied to take a substitute for

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Two of Kingsley's Women.

It cannot be said by the unprejudiced reader that his Hyppatia is an attractive personality. He has somehow failed to find her charm, though he has given her a beautiful body, perfectly molded features, with blue eyes and yellow hair, and a glorious smile as cold as the baths of Apollo, and it is not going so far to say that she is rather repellent. Of course she might answer that she did not mean to be otherwise, in her poet's hands, and that what he had shown her, that she was rather arrogant in mind, holding matrimony in high scorn and thinking but little better, if any, of maternity. But the passion of the ardent young monk Philammon for this snow cold divinity is not made altogether credible, and his sister, poor, pretty Felicia, who has lived the life of a woman and is presently the paramour of the Gothic chief Amal, is more winning in some things than the heart. She is passionately faithful to her huge, stupid, honest Goth, and she is kind to every one else, with a willingness to see people happy even if they are not virtuous. She is spiritually modest and at least unconscious in her other immodesty. When she is awakened through the memories of childhood to the fact that she and Philammon are sister and brother, long ago carried captive from Athens and sold into slavery, she tries hard to let the monk bring her to a conviction of sin. But though she is good Christian enough to believe in hell, she also believes in a good God and thinks he will take into consideration the peculiar circumstances under which she remains constant to Amal, whom the customs of the Goth's tribe will not suffer to marry her.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Bazar.

what still remains to be attained. The word "people" is not yet understood; the word "citizen" is still misquoted.

In the twentieth century the cause of liberty must and will progress until every vestige of injustice to woman shall be wiped away. Then indeed human rights will mean the rights of man and woman alike; then difference of sex will not prevent one-half the people from asserting their right to participate in every part of a government which is by the whole people for the whole people.—Alice Parker Lesser.

When Baby Is Sick.

A baby's cry should be to the intelligent mother the best index to its physical condition. The healthy baby cries very loudly and in a lusty, explosive, angry manner, and the tears flow freely. The sick baby, or the one on the verge of sickness, cries peevishly or whines in a low tone.

Watch the manner in which the baby takes its food. If it is perfectly well it will attack the bottle greedily and will express its satisfaction much in the same manner as any other young suckling animal—that is, by soft and marmalade noises or grunts. If, on the other hand, the baby contemplates its food before touching it or after tasting turns from it, be sure there is something wrong.

Watch the baby closely while it sleeps. If it is in perfect health the skin will be moist, the lips damp and scarlet, the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet pink. The eyelids will be completely closed and there will be no twitching of the muscles about the mouth or nose or eyes. Save for a faint rhythmic sound of breathing the healthy baby when asleep will be as still as a piece of carved marble.

If the baby smiles in its sleep, if it throws out its little hands and feet with swift, spasmodic motions; if the eyes are only half closed, the corners of the mouth drawn down, the breathing irregular or labored, the face flushed and the head hot, then lose no time in calling in the family physician.

Convalescent Nurses.

In the line of trained nursing a new department has been taken which will appeal to the housekeeper who has struggled with the question of home nursing or its alternative. Convalescent nurses are trained to take care of the patient during the last weeks of a fever or other lingering sickness before he is well enough to go out and yet demands companionship. The duties are light, consisting merely of reading aloud, giving tonics, keeping the depressed spirits up, seeing that the invalid does not overdo and all the hundred and one things which the occasion demands.

Of course the salary is not so great as it would be if more detailed attention were required, but by means of this change many a nurse who could not spend the full time and money necessary to take the full course at a training school and hospital is enabled to begin her duties in this way, while the boon to the average income is a great one, enabling a nurse to be retained during the trying weeks which succeed a dangerous illness, when otherwise the family would be obliged often to do the hundred and one things which a querulous patient demands and which are so tiring. While the salary of the expert nurse is from $25 a week up, that of the convalescent nurse is about $8 or $10, and yet her work may be as satisfactory as that of the other.

La Grippe Quickly Cured.
"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called LaGrippe" says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use for these ailments.

COURT ADJOURNS.

The February term of the Supreme Judicial Court, after a session of two weeks, adjourned finally on Saturday last. For several reasons this has been an important term. During the first week of its session there were no traverse juries in attendance.

The grand jury began its work promptly on the first day of the term and did not conclude until Tuesday morning of last week, after a session of seven days. Seldom, if ever, in Oxford county has the work before the grand jury occupied more than one week, but the result as shown by its final report, explained the long session. There were sixty indictments found, the largest number ever reported at any one term in the history of the county. Of these indictments, fifty-two were for violation of the prohibitory law; two, for larceny; one, for assault and battery; one for malicious mischief; one for attempted burglary; one for breaking, entering and larceny; two against the Grand Trunk Railway Co. for transporting cattle in cars which are insufficiently protected from the cold and storms. Of the liquor indictments, forty-two were against Rumford Falls parties; four against a Norway party; four against an Oxford man; two against Woodstock parties.

No civil cases were tried before the traverse juries, and immediately after the reporting of the grand jury, the criminal work was taken up. The first criminal case tried was the Hebron burglary case, in which Jas. White, Thomas Howard, and Thomas Murray, were alleged to have attempted to break and enter the store of Fred Packard at East Hebron. The burglars were frightened away by the barking of Mr. Packard's dog and were pursued and found in the car house of the Portland & Rumford Falls Railway, at East Hebron, where they were captured and later committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury. This trial occupied one whole day. County Attorney E. C. Park appeared for the State, and Hon. Jas. S. Wright of So. Paris defended. The jury returned a verdict of guilty against all three and Jas. White was sentenced to two years at hard labor in the State prison, and Howard and Murray to eighteen months each.

Several divorce cases were heard during the second week of the term, and many of those indicted on liquor cases settled by pleading guilty and paying their fines, or receiving a jail sentence.

Some $1,200 was received from liquor fines and settlements of new and old cases, and on defaulted bonds, and some $450 in fines imposed where the parties could not pay and were committed to jail, from sixty to ninety days. Some of these may pay.

Thomas Sloan of Rumford, against whom were found six liquor indictments, pleaded guilty and was sentenced on two of the six, one hundred dollars and costs on each, and in default of payment ninety days in jail. He is now in jail. Harry S. Russell of Norway, against whom there were four indictments, was fined $200 and costs or sixty days in jail. Russell had already been in jail three months on a bound over case from the Norway municipal court.

Walter Hanson of Rumford paid $125 on liquor nuisance; Arthur Richardson of Denmark, $115, on search and seizure; Fred W. Noble, $25, fine on assault and battery; Patrick Meehan, $101, on liquor nuisance; Fred Russell, $175, on search and seizure, and liquor nuisance; Lot E. Whitman, $25, costs on single sale and the indictment was left hanging over him; Isaac Moody was given thirty days in jail on single sale; and Alden Z. Cates, druggist at Rumford Falls, paid $216, fine and costs on indictments for common seller and single sale; other liquor cases were settled on which $475 was paid into the county treasury; and Chas. B. Ryerson of Milton paid $25, costs for intoxication.

The case which created the most interest was that against Alden Z. Cates, a prominent druggist of Rumford Falls. Mr. Cates has been before Court previously upon liquor cases but has gotten clear. The grand jury at this term returned five indictments against him; four single sales and one common seller. Cates was full of fight and evidently his pugnacity inspired County Attorney Park with somewhat of the same spirit. County Attorney Park took up the indictment as a common seller for trial first. Cates secured the services of Ex-Judge Foster of Portland to defend him, and with Foster was Ralph Parker of Rumford Falls. A stubborn fight was made by Foster. County Attorney Park appeared for the State, and the case occupied nearly a day in its trial. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, and Mr. Cates was fined $100, and costs amounting to some $70. Besides this he pleaded guilty to one of the single sale indictments and paid a $50 fine on that. Much interest was shown in this case and the conviction is looked upon by many as of salutary effect for the temperance cause. A large number of those at Rumford Falls who were indicted, got wind of the movement and there was quite an exodus for parts unknown so that many of the alleged offenders have not yet been taken into custody. County Attorney Park says that he did not ask for jail sentences in many of the cases as nearly all were in matters where the parties had not previously been before the court, but now that a record has been given of a violation of the law, another offence might call for a jail sentence. Mr. Park says that those who have been violating the Statutes have had sufficient warning of what may be expected, and it is their own fault if they find themselves in the clutches of the law.

Pneumonia Can be Prevented.

This disease always results from a cold or an attack of the grip and may be prevented by the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. That remedy was extensively used during the epidemic of La Grippe of the past few years, and not a single case has ever been reported that did not recover or that resulted in pneumonia, which shows it to be a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained a world wide reputation for its cures of colds and grip.

Convention at Lewiston.

The seventeenth annual convention of the Dept. of Maine National Relief Corps was held at Lewiston Feb. 19-20, at K. of P. hall. It has been pronounced the best and largest attended ever held.

Our delegation from Brown Corps, Bethel, consisted of Miss Elberta E. Burnham, Mrs. Ella Jordan, Mrs. Arvilla J. Morgan, Mrs. Carrie Arno, Mrs. Mabel Wheeler, and Mrs. Grace B. Tyler. Owing to the delay in reaching Lewiston on account of the belated train, we missed nearly all of the first days proceedings, being present at the latter part of the afternoon session only. Fortunately we were in season to hear some very inspiring remarks upon the use of our flag, by Mrs. Mary J. Carr, who is national president.

The report of the delegate-at-large by Mrs. Maria Muir, was interesting, also that of Senior Aid, by Mrs. Sarah E. Putman. A day known as the Woman's Relief Corps Day is to be established on the birthday of Dorothea Dix, who was an ex-army nurse, also a day to be known as Grand Army Day, to be fixed by the Dept. President. The report of the Department, Secretary, Florence M. Cummings, was of special interest. Mrs. Hattie C. Sprague, Dept. President, presided at all sessions of the convention.

Custer Relief Corps of Lewiston arranged for a reception of the Dept. officers of the W. R. C., the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, and the public. This reception took place at the De Witt House parlors from 8 to 8:30 o'clock, Tuesday evening, and was an elaborate affair. Over two hundred and fifty persons attended. Music was furnished by an orchestra.

After the guests were presented to the line of officers, we proceeded to the Custer Post hall, and were highly entertained by musical and literary talent. Following is the program:

Music, corner, Mr. Fred Hamilton, violin, Mr. L. C. Chandler, piano, Mrs. L. Chandler.
Reading, Miss Ames.
Vocal duet, Mrs. S. H. Mills accompanying and singing the soprano.
Song, Mr. Geo. Graves.
Reading, Miss Mabel Davis.
Bene solo, Mr. Geo. Graves.
Reading an original poem, Mr. L. C. Bateman.

Mrs. Emma Hayford announced the program. Following this, refreshments were served by a caterer in the banquet hall. Dancing and whist furnished enjoyment for the remainder of the evening.

Those present were honored by the presence of Commander-in-Chief, Leo Rousseau, and National President W. R. C., Mrs. Mary L. Carr.

Much necessary business was performed after the opening of the convention Wednesday morning. At ten o'clock, Commanders, Ross and Milliken, were escorted from the Grand Army encampment to the convention, by the committee on courtesy. With well chosen words they extended greeting to the Convention. Mrs. Sarah E. Putman and Mrs. Jennie L. Day were soon admitted, with an enthusiastic report of the gallant manner in which they were received at the encampment where they had been to carry greetings to the Convention.

Wednesday afternoon the officers for the coming year were elected and initiated as follows:

Pres.—Mrs. Sarah J. Ross, Newport.
Sen. V. P.—Mrs. Azuba O. Bagley, Lewiston.

Jun. V. P.—Mrs. Annie L. Stiles, Springvale.

Treas.—Mrs. Rose Graham, Westbrook.

Chaplain—Mrs. Rose P. Holt, Fairfield.

Ex. Com.—Mrs. Ella J. Masen, Biddeford; Mrs. Sarah E. Putman, Dixfield; Mrs. Laura E. Stevens, Portland; Mrs. Jennie L. Day, Gorham; Miss Elberta E. Burnham, Bethel.

Among the appointments of the incoming president was instituting and installing officer, Mrs. Ella Jordan, Bethel. She was also chosen for one of the delegates to the Convention at large.

An invitation was extended by Custer Corps to all W. R. C. ladies of the Convention, to meet with the Corps at their hall on Wednesday evening, to be present at their regular meeting, which was gladly accepted by our party and many others.

Dr. Greene's Nervura

BLOOD AND NERVE REMEDY SUSTAINS AND BUILDS UP.

Vital Forces Strengthened

A Powerful Spring Tonic and Restorative for Men and Women.

THE great efficiency of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is clearly shown by its pronounced effect upon men and women of middle age, who find themselves confronted by the problem of premature failure of vital powers. While it is always best to get Dr. Greene's advice, which may be had without charge by any one who will call or write to him, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., yet if the persons who need help will not do this, great good will be experienced by them in the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura, the perfect invigorator for those who begin to feel the wear and tear of life.

DR. GREENE'S NERVURA

PROTECTS WOMEN AT THIS CRITICAL TIME.

For the great crisis which comes to women just beyond middle age, nothing will prepare them so well as this great medicine.

MRS. WM. LAMSON, ORANGE, MASS., SAYS: "My trouble was born of life. I was confined to the bed for three years. I suffered great pain and came very near losing my life. I did but just live—just escaped the grave. I employed two doctors, and derived no benefit from them. Mrs. David Goddard, of Orange, Mass., who had been cured by Dr. Greene's Nervura, blood and nerve remedy, advised me to use Nervura. "I was confined to my bed when I began to use the medicine. I gradually began to improve, and have now used five bottles and am entirely cured. I do hard work every day, and firmly believe that if I had not used Dr. Greene's Nervura I should now have been in my grave."

Men Who Need Help Will Find Strength and Restoration in

DR. GREENE'S NERVURA

will give it the proper impetus. The proper use of this great restorative will effectually in all such cases remove all anxiety, and Nature will presently reassert itself. For those who feel conscious of having invited trouble by excess of any kind, dissipation or evil practices, it is necessary to secure Dr. Greene's advice for the treatment which will prove the most efficient. This advice is free to all, and it conveys a promise of sure help.

As a SPRING MEDICINE there is Nothing Equal to DR. GREENE'S NERVURA.

DIXFIELD.

The beautiful cantata "Esther" was given in Music Hall, on the evening of Feb. 21-22, to large and appreciative audiences; that of the 22nd being somewhat larger than the previous night. On Friday 22nd the Cheney Opera House orchestra of Rumford Falls, furnished music in between acts. Every one present had only words of praise for the able manner in which those in the cast handled their parts.

The costumes were excellent, several of which are worthy special mention, among which were those of the King, W. S. Wight; Mrs. Cora Pease as Queen Esther, Geo. J. Brown as Haman, Mrs. Sybil Dellingham as Zeresh, Mr. E. Staples as Mordecai, and the Misses Florence and Josie Marsh as maid of honor; Mary L. Frost and Mrs. Alice Keith also had fine costumes. On Friday night Music Hall was packed to overflowing, many coming from Rumford Falls; many of our townspeople also waited until the last night thinking that it would be the best, and in this they were not disappointed.

The Cheney Opera House orchestra favored the audience with many fine selections and made a great hit, as this was their first appearance before a Dixfield audience.

Everything was fine from start to finish, but there are some who are worthy of being especially mentioned. Geo. J. Brown as Haman and Eugene Staples as Mordecai, were fine. Prof. W. S. Wight was in his usual good trim, and the work of Miss May L. Frost was excellent, also that of Miss Florence Marsh; Mrs. C. Pease as Queen Esther, was almost out of sight, so to speak, and Mr. Holman as Beggat, sang and acted his part grandly. Mrs. Jones was accompanist, and little Lucille Ladd was fine in her part, as daughter of Haman. Great credit is due Mr. Wight for the excellent training he has given the singers to bring out the fine voices for the solos, and the large Chorus that sang so beautifully. Mr. Wight has been with us nearly all winter with a large singing class, and his services have been of great value to the singers as well as to the church and community, and it is hoped he will return to us another season.

THROAT REST

You can cough yourself into bronchitis, pneumonia, and consumption. Bandaging and bundling your throat will do no good. You must give your throat and lungs rest and allow the cough wounds to heal. There is nothing so bad for a cough as coughing. Stop it by using

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Even the cough of early consumption is cured. And, later on, when the disease is firmly fixed, you can bring rest and comfort in every case. A 25 cent bottle will cure new coughs and colds; the 50 cent size is better for settled coughs of bronchitis and weak lungs; the one dollar size is more economical for chronic cases and consumption. It's the size you should keep on hand. "All families ought to be on hand for sudden attacks of croup or whooping cough. Every cough remedy the land should keep Ayer's Cherry Pectoral constantly on hand to provide against an emergency." J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

O'CONNELL ELECTED

Voters Turned Out In Force In the Contest at Worcester

Other News of Interest From Various Parts of New England States.

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 20.—Philip J. O'Connell was elected mayor of Worcester at the special election held yesterday, defeating William A. Lytle, the Republican nominee, by a majority of 511. The vote was 9559 to 9048, and the largest ever cast at a municipal election in Worcester.

The election was made necessary by a tie vote for mayor in December, when, after a recount, each candidate was found to have 8001 votes. Election night it was announced that Lytle had won by 41 votes. The next morning a mistake was discovered, which elected O'Connell. A recount and the tie followed.

O'Connell went to the Massachusetts supreme court on disputed ballots, which he claimed should not be counted for Lytle, but the court decided against him, and a special election was necessary.

The special election was preceded by unprecedented registration in Worcester, 961 new names being placed on the lists after the city had apparently been swept clean in December. It is estimated that nearly 3000 Republican votes were cast for the Democratic candidate.

Dr. Trueblood's Hot Shot

Boston, Feb. 22.—"Patriotism and Militarism" were discussed before the Woman's Educational and Industrial union yesterday during which Dr. Trueblood, delegate to The Hague conference, said: "A great tide of militarism, brutality, commercialism and coarseness is passing over the civilized world at the present time, and in this we find as prime movers Bismarck, Cecil Rhodes, Dr. Lyman Abbott and Klipping." The speaker denounced the statement of Dr. Abbott that the Filipinos were barbarian dogs. "No man could make such a statement unless his mind were perverted by this wave of savagery now passing over us. To stand by the wrongdoing of a government is not patriotism, but the deepest and most contemptible treason a man could be guilty of."

Didn't Know His Daughter

Clinton, Mass., Feb. 22.—A demented woman of 35 years, Mrs. Ellen L. Mann, was found drowned, a probable suicide, in the Nashua river at Lancaster yesterday. Her father, William A. Kilborn, was one of those who tried to revive her body, but he did not recognize her. He brought the body to Clinton in his own wagon, but he did not discover that she was his daughter until late in the afternoon. Then, becoming alarmed by her prolonged absence, he telephoned to Medical Examiner Tobey, asking him to examine the body again and see if he found certain marks. The marks were found and Kilborn positively identified the body as that of Mrs. Mann.

Bunch of Performers "Hit"

Boston, Feb. 22.—The performers in 10 of the acts billed at Keith's theatre suddenly went on strike yesterday afternoon, but the audience did not notice it. The performers who struck sent word they were ill.

Wholesale Thieving Unearthed

AMERICA'S STAND

Strong Objection to Hostile Demonstration in China

Will Refresh Recollections of Foreign Ministers in Pekin

Washington, Feb. 20.—The state department, after a cabinet discussion yesterday had developed the attitude of the administration, cabled Minister Conger to communicate to the foreign ministers at Pekin the feeling of the United States government that further hostile expeditions should not be indulged in at this time. It is understood that this course was regarded as best, since it left room for another appeal to the powers directly through their foreign offices in case Mr. Conger's efforts are futile.

The state department officials decline to make public the text of the note. However, it was said to be in perfect accord with the policy already developed and to make manifest the deep conviction of the United States government that the proposed hostile expedition is in violation of the rights of the individual parties to the peace negotiations, because tending to bring about the failure of these negotiations.

If the threat of military expeditions is based upon a desire to force the Chinese envoys to speedier action on the ministerial proposals, then it must be stated that our government disapproves, feeling that it has not yet been demonstrated sufficiently that the Chinese government is not acting to the best of its ability.

Regarding the insistence of the foreign ministers on the imposition of the death penalty upon the whole list of proscribed Chinese officials it is recalled that the Chinese agreed to administer the severest possible punishment, and it is conceived here that it may be entirely impossible for that government to go to the length demanded by the ministers.

These considerations are, of course, known to the foreign ministers in Pekin, but it will be Mr. Conger's duty to refresh their recollections as to the engagements their governments entered into with the United States, as well as with China, and he will point out that our attitude is in exact accordance with the outline laid down in the formal notes preceding the beginning of the negotiations.

The United States government will continue to deal with the other powers through their diplomatic agencies, ignoring the suggestion that the ministers at Pekin have no control over the military forces stationed there, and carrying out the same theory General Chaffee will act in thorough harmony with any suggestions made by Mr. Conger.

Mode of Punishment Agreed Upon
Pekin, Feb. 21.—The foreign envoys have agreed to permit the imperial court to commute the sentences of de-capitalization in the case of Prince Tuan, Duke Lan and General Tung Pu Hsiang to life imprisonment, and will agree to the following punishments: Prince Chwang, to be strangled; Yui Hsien, to be decapitated; Chiao Shu Chiao and Ying Nien, to be permitted to strangle themselves, and Chi Hsin and Hsu Cheng Yu to be beheaded in Pekin. If the court advances no new obstacle, the negotiations on the first point of the demands of the powers may be considered closed.

No More Severity Than Deserved
London, Feb. 21.—Answering a memorial of the International Arbitration and Peace association, Lord Salisbury replies that the government considers the British forces in China "have not exhibited any severity in excess of that rendered necessary by the atrocious proceedings of the Chinese government."

Police Promptly Responded
Salem, Mass., Feb. 21.—The riot call—10 blows struck three times upon the fire alarm—was sounded at 4:49 yesterday afternoon, as a test to see how quickly the police would respond. Within a minute two officers had reported; inside of 11 minutes 17 had reported, and 28 minutes after the sounding of the call, 32 of the 42 men composing the force had responded. The other 10 men are located on the outskirts of the city and came in later.

Four Firemen Killed
New Haven, Feb. 19.—Four men are dead, one was fatally injured in the ruins of an unoccupied shop on Winchester avenue, which caught fire this morning. The dead are Captain Joseph Condon, Edward Hale, William Riley and Frank Williams, all firemen. Henry Powell was fearfully burned and his chances of life are considered very slim.

Arrested on Old Charge
Northampton, Mass., Feb. 19.—When William Hayes was called in the district court yesterday to plead to the charge of drunkenness, the officers recognized him as the man they had been looking for five years for alleged assault on a 6-year-old girl in Granby. He was rearrested on the old warrant and held in $1000 for a hearing.

Liberal Offer Rejected
Boston, Feb. 20.—The property of St. Paul's Episcopal church on Tremont street is to be retained as a place of worship, the advocates of a sale having mustered up only about one-half the votes necessary to carry the project through. A syndicate had offered $1,750,000 for the property for business purposes.

Pastor Wilson Resigns
Lewiston, Me., Feb. 18.—Rev. H. C. Wilson, pastor of the Hammond Street M. E. church, resigned last night, on account of serious charges against him. He says he has done nothing criminal. He intends to start a People's church.

In Regard to Scrofula.

It is commonly inherited. Few are entirely free from it. Pale, weak, puny children are afflicted with it in nine cases out of ten.

And yet it may develop so slowly as to cause little, if any, disturbance during the whole period of childhood.

It may then produce dyspepsia, catarrh, and marked tendency to consumption before manifesting itself in much cutaneous eruption or glandular swelling.

A hundred and one things aggravate it, among them being want of proper exercise, too much heat or cold, impure air, unwholesome food, bad water—whatever tends to vitiate the fluids and relax the solids.

Common indications of it are bunches, abscesses, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, rickets, paleness, nervousness, wasting, and general debility.

It affected the eyes and caused a running sore on the head of Grace Goodwin, of West Franklin, Maine, who, at eighteen years of age, testified that she had been entirely cured of it by Hood's Sarsaparilla, when other medicines had failed to do her any good whatever.

It exhibited itself in sores on the face and neck of the son of Mrs. Etta Washburn, of Kennebunk, Maine, and in bunches under the eyes of the daughter of Mrs. W. E. Toxeybury, of South Atkinson, Maine, both of whom were radically and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The fact is, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine of all medicines for scrofula, in either sex, at any age. It acts directly and peculiarly on the blood, which it rids of every impurity and makes rich and abundant, and this can be easily proven by what it has done in your own neighborhood.

Accept no substitute for Hood's Sarsaparilla. No substitute acts like it. Remember, the first step toward Hood's is a step toward a cure.
